Just Call Him “Q”

He’s one of metro Atlanta’s most distinguished surgeons, but around the hallways of DeKalb Medical he is known simply as “Q.”

Michael Quinones, M.D., received his undergraduate degree from Yale University in 1982, graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1986, and served a residency at Harvard’s prestigious Brigham & Women’s Hospital. After two years at the Dana Farber Cancer Institute, Quinones joined DeKalb Medical in 1994. He is DeKalb Medical at Hillendale’s Medical Chief of Staff, and is now serving a three-year term on the DRHS Board of Directors. He has been named consistently as one of Atlanta Magazine’s Top Doctors.

As a surgical oncologist, Quinones offers expertise in advanced cancer surgeries that would’ve previously been referred to other institutions. He is a specialist in hyperthermic intraperitoneal chemotherapy, which offers high-tech treatment and hope to abdominal cancer patients. He notes that the DeKalb Medical Outpatient Surgery Department continues to achieve the highest patient satisfaction scores and outcomes.

“We offer the best in community medicine and we deliver excellence daily,” said Quinones.
